

Mixed emotions

Nov 1997

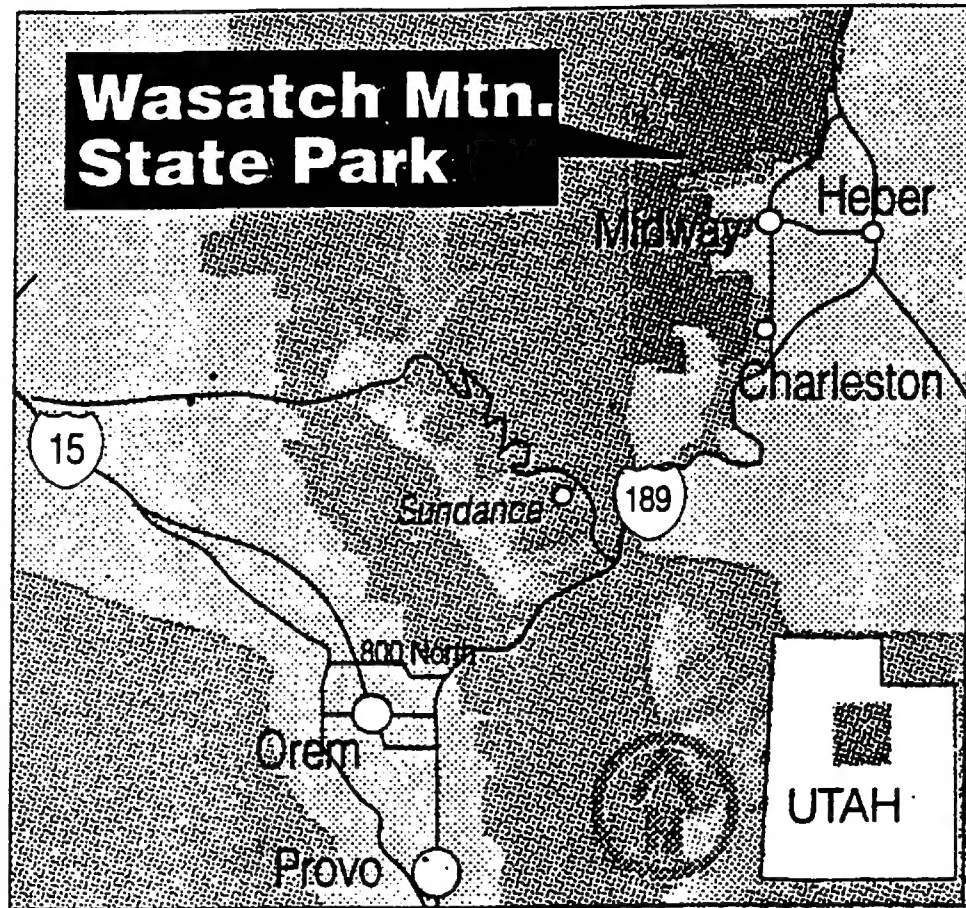

ZIMMERMAN

Herald

Soldier Hollow
ought to offer
spectators an experience, an
and former
as.

sidents of the
d they take a
he headaches
ny the skiers.
re concerned
e water for
culinary pur-
rom and how
traffic will be

are coming to
t invited," one
t a meeting of
ad Recreation
sday night in

DAVID KENNARD/The Daily Herald

Nov 1997

of Norway and a former Olympics cross-country athlete. He said the site at Wasatch Mountain State Park will enable spectators to see more than three-fourths of each race. "Normally they see the participants, then the athletes disappear on the course, then come back," he said.

Heber Valley will host two

Internationally Known

ried to host the Bjorkstol and
re in Wasatch
already starting
work for the

ne out and win
s really excit-
id Wasatch
Economic
obyn Pearson.
in its infan-
concept. We
it grow. We t mature. We
e community
nd it. We
other people
e area put
litmus test."

Hollow's
not only met
straints, but
legacy facility
Edwards, a
al consultant
ldier Hollow
envisions as
the most suc-
active train-
n North America."

t excited about the site because it project and what it will be leaving in Wasatch County in years to Mitzi Nelson, a Midway resill be something we can use not te ports but we will be able to in the summer time and fall."

comments, presented in an 88-al to SLOC, received praise from Robyn Pearson and John Aalberg, site selection member, celebrate last week's venue announcement.

committee members. The proposal had early financial backing by private as well as public interests. David Luber, managing member of Deer Crest; Robert Fuller, developer of The Villages of Zermatt; Britt Mathwich, executive director of the Homestead; surrounding municipalities and Wasatch County each donated thousands of dollars to the proposal.

"You have a lot of people to consider in

Continued To Page 2A